

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A color printing apparatus having pulse width modulation means which performs pulse width modulation
5 for tone control, and a control method thereof are provided. Based on determination of a printing mode of printing data supplied and determination of whether or not the printing data is to be processed as single-color data, a pulse width modulation pattern to be used
10 by the pulse width modulation means is decided.